

Figure 18. Heath forests, found in small patches on mountain ridges, are markedly different in structure and composition, including this potentially new species of Nepenthes (Nepen.).

Figure 19. The trees in cloud forests are normally stunted, poorly formed and clothed in thick mosses.